BUCKS CLUBWOMEN

Mrs. James Muffly Suggests Conservation Projects For Group

WASHINGTON CROSSING, May 9 — The spring meeting of the Conservation Section, Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs, was held yesterday in the pavilion at Bowman's Hill.

Mrs. Earl Tomb, Bristol, chairman, Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs for the Preserve, presided. In her welcoming talk, Mrs. Tomb said her group for over 15 years has taken care of the "Education Trail." Prior to World War II it had devoted two days each year to work on the trail.

Mrs. E. Wilmer Fisher, Morrisville, prsident of the county federation, gave a greeting, reminding how fortunate the group was in having in attendance Mrs. James Muffly, state chairman of Conservation from Lewisburg. Mrs. Leon Baker, Langhorne, chairman for conservation in the county, was next introduced. Mrs. Tomb presented the new horticulturist at the park, Norman Fisher, who reported signs have been repainted, and stated that where plants had disappeared they would be replaced. For the water habitants a deeper hog is being prepared. Mr. Fisher described the box huckleberry plant. Cuttings have been made from a 2,000 year old plant in Pa. They grow from runners under the ground, some reaching one mile in length. An estimate of their age can be made by the growth of the plant in a year's time. Some are older than the sequoia trees in California."

Mrs. James Muffly suggested two projects for the conservation group: (1.) "Start in your own backyard two inch seedlings of hemlock, Pennsylvania's state tree, transplant them twice, when two feet high you can give them away

THE WAR

(By I. N. S.)

TOKYO — Allied troops gained another three miles northwest of Seoul today and United Nations planes shattered a veiled Red aerial buildup at the northwest Korean base of Sinuiju opposite Manchuria. The war's heaviest single air strike, in which several hundred jet and propeller-driven planes subdued opposition by 100 communist jets and many ground guns at Sinuiju, coincided with fresh UN advances along the land front. In the east-central sector South Korean troops seized a key supply highway running 30 miles northeast from Hongchon to Inje, a junction four miles north of Parallel 38. On the west side of the peninsula, ROK (Republic of Korea) assault forces smashed farther ahead in a comeback drive northwest of Seoul, the South Korean capital. Directly north of

CONSIDER ACTIVITY FOR LEISURE TIME

State Recreation Conference Opens Today at State College

FOR STATE RESIDENTS

(Following is the last of three exclusive articles by International News Service outlining the need for increased community interest in providing public recreation facilities):

By Al Spivak
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, May 9 (INS) — The state recreation conference opening today at State College tackles for the third consecutive year the problem of providing leisure-time activities for residents of Pennsylvania communities.

The subject also is in for official scrutiny following study of a report submitted to Gov. John S. Fine last week by a statewide committee that devoted a year's study to it.

Working closely with both groups is the state planning board, which comments:

"The full meaning of community recreation was evident when our service men and women returned to their respective homes and became aware of the lack of opportunities for the constructive use of their leisure time."

The board considers the public recreation problem to be of topmost importance in view of current industrial expansion and the unsettled nature of our times.

"To millions of our people whose lives must be passed mainly in the streets of great cities, or even of small towns, the need for public

Pastor Speaks at WSCS Installation Ceremony

CROYDON, May 9 — During an impressive ceremony, officers of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Wilkinson Memorial Methodist Church were installed Sunday evening. The service began with singing of the hymn "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee." The Rev. Louis Heim told of an artist constructing a stained glass window, one piece missing for completion of his masterpiece. The sun streaming in the window made the object gleam, and lifting it the artist found it to be the eye of Christ. The story was used to symbolize the fact that all are needed to make the work of the church complete.

Installation was in charge of the Rev. Mr. Heim. Mrs. Morris Shifferstine was installed as president; Mrs. David Pitman, vice-president; Mrs. Charles Perkins, secretary; Mrs. George Lovett, treasurer; Mrs. Richard Ehrler, promotion secretary; Mrs. Walter Rice, spiritual life; secretaries—Mrs. George Remley, literature; Miss Mary Misorech, missionary education; Mrs. Charles Hamm, Mrs. J. Harry Smith, children's work; Mrs. Joseph Warburton, youth and students; Mrs. Ralston Hedrick, supply; Mrs. Doran Edwards, local church.

This year a "county fair" was held, and the three main events were the performances on the "midway", a domestic animal parade by Brownie Scouts, and the closing procession of Juliette Low representatives. MARSHALL DISPUTES TRUMAN

Unnoted in the avalanche of testimony in the "great debate" going on between General MacArthur and the Truman Administration was the fact that on Monday General Marshall flatly contradicted President Truman on one of the most basic points of the whole Korean situation.

The quotations speak for themselves. Both the President, in his radio talk, and General Marshall, in his testimony at Washington, were discussing the criticisms of General MacArthur to the effect that there is a "policy vacuum" in Korea, and that the present military strategy can produce nothing more than a perpetual war on that unhappy peninsula, in which we could hope to gain nothing, but which would cost us frightfully in lives and resources.

This President Truman indignantly denied. He said:

"The struggle in Korea is a long and hard one. But it can be won — and our policy is designed to win it . . . If we stick to our guns, and continue to punish the aggressors, we can end the aggression in Korea and restore peace . . . I believe we have a better chance of stopping the aggression in Korea, at a smaller cost in the lives of our troops and those of our allies, by following our present course . . . I repeat: I am convinced that the course we are now following in Korea is achieving the most for peace . . . We are not engaged in a struggle without an end."

But here is what General Marshall testified on this same subject:

Russell — Now, general, I would like to get your professional opinion as well as your views as Secretary of Defense as to whether or not the Chinese Reds can be driven out of Korea and Korea pacified without the implementing General MacArthur recommends?

Marshall — When you use the expression "driven out of Korea" I assume you mean all of Korea, both north and south.

Russell — Yes, sir, I mean to carry out the original directive of the United Nations.

Marshall — I should say that if the Chinese Communists continue in force in North Korea with the potential of additional reinforcements that might be made available, and with our situation where we visualize no considerable reinforcement of the United Nations army, that THEY COULD NOT BE DRIVEN OUT OF NORTH KOREA.

General Marshall talked on this subject at some length, prodded by Senators eager to shed further light on

2386 PUPILS ARE ON HALF-SESSIONS

Report Issued at Office of Charles H. Boehm In Doylestown

ALL GRADES CROWDED

"Currently 2,386 pupils are on half sessions in Lower Bucks County," a special report prepared by the school administrators revealed this morning. This report is from the office of County Superintendent of Schools Charles H. Boehm, in Doylestown. "New teachers are now being employed to take care of 3,266 on half sessions next September.

"The deficiencies in elementary classrooms, the report indicates, is now 217. Over $6,000,000 will be required to meet current enrolments without taking into account increases in school enrolment. One school administrator predicted triple sessions, if legal, before the 1952-53 term. In that case elementary pupils would attend school from 4 p. m. to 8 p. m.

"Lack of funds, however, would prevent some districts from providing a normal nine months term, the county authorities indicated. Bucks County's members of the Legislature were reported to be very active in trying to secure legislative action to avert a complete breakdown in the school program of the districts in Lower Bucks," the report concluded.

Henry J. Kaiser Visits Chase Plant in Trenton

Speculation is rife here today over a flying visit paid to the Chase Aircraft Co., in Trenton, yesterday, by Henry J. Kaiser. Kaiser conferred with officials of the Chase firm.

It has long been rumored here that Kaiser has a large contract for defense materials. It was reported on the street here that Kaiser was endeavoring to lease the big aluminum plant in Burlington, and it was also reported that he was planning to enlarge Plant II of the Kaiser Metal Products, Inc., here. Efforts to obtain confirmation or denial from the local office of the firm have been unsuccessful.

Two Freighters Collide Off Chester

Chester, Pa.—Two freighters—the S. S. Antinous and the S. S. Transamerican—collided today in the Delaware River off Chester with such force the vessels were locked together. A Coast Guard spokesman said the bow of the 7,200-ton Transamerican pierced the port side of the 6165-ton Antinous to a depth of approximately 30 feet. No injuries were reported. Commercial tugs which reached the scene shortly after the collision began efforts to pull the vessels apart. The Antinous began taking water in its engine room and No. 3 hold, but the Coast Guard said the vessel was "holding up" during salvage operations.

The Antinous was outbound from Camden, N. J., to Baltimore with a general cargo including 500 tons of canned goods from the Campbell Soup Co. The Transamerican was inbound with an ore cargo for Port Richmond in Philadelphia.

RESIDENTS OF THE TOWNSHIP WILL ELECT OFFICIALS

Complete Election Necessitated By Change in Township Status

COMMISSIONERS

School Directors Will Also Be Chosen in November Election

For the first time in history, residents of Bristol Township will go to the polls this year to elect a complete slate of municipal officials. The complete election is necessitated by the recent change to a first class township, the only one in Bucks County at present.

Five township commissioners will be elected this year, three for a period of four years, and two for two-year terms. Incumbents include James Harris, Frank Hibbs, George Sutton, Walter Bowker and Gene Stutz. Hibbs was one of the three supervisors under the former township set-up.

Township treasurer, the title given to the tax collector, will also come up for re-election this year. This post calls for a two-year term, and is at present filled by Robert Cameron.

Like the treasurer, chief assessor James Turner will come up for re-election. His term is for two years, but an auxiliary post, that of assistant assessor, to be filled in November will call for a term of four years.

In addition, three auditors, one each for two, four and six years, will be elected, while two school directors, with six-year terms, come up for re-election. School board members whose terms expire this year are William Knight and Harry Barth.

With the exception of school directors and a few others, all the elected posts to be filled this year by township voters are new since the municipality became first class.

In the primary election, July 24, each party will nominate men or women to run in the general election in November. It will be remembered the Pennsylvania primary was moved up this year to accommodate the soldier vote.

Registration figures in the Bucks County courthouse show registration figures for Bristol township to include 1338 Democrats, 3119 Republicans, and 141 Non-Partisan.

HAS HEART ATTACK

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan
(Distributed by International News Service)

Congress continues to be well informed about the conduct of the war in Korea . . . Mr. Truman briefs the Democrats leaders once a week at the White House and the Republicans read the newspapers every day in the barbershop.

It has been suggested that the Republican leaders ought to be there when the captain meets with his generals, but you let a Republican in the White House once and he gets that old misty look in his eyes.

On the second visit he starts figuring how he would rearrange the furniture and by the third he's figuring how he would rearrange the cabinet.

Anyway, it isn't important that the Republicans be invited to these briefings . . . this is the third war the Democrats have handled in modern times and they have experience on their side.

The Republicans have to go all the way back to Lincoln to find a war president . . . in fact they have to go almost all the way back to Lincoln to find a Republican president.

I think this is the day the chiefs of staff go to the White House for another non-partisan briefing of the Democrats. Watch the news columns for late bulletins from General Sam Rayburn.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 9, 1951

A LITTLE ECONOMY

As the American taxpayer has learned, to his sorrow, in the past two decades, it is always difficult to persuade Congress to cut back the expenses of the federal government and it is next to impossible to accomplish this in a war or near-war period. It is all the more impressive, therefore, to find the House Appropriations Committee ordering a cut of $675,000,000 in the $6,837,000,000 fund requested by President Truman to operate 27 governmental agencies during the coming fiscal year.

This saving does not, to be sure, loom very large in a total budget running to more than $71,000,000. There is no guarantee that all of the cut will stick when the measure reaches the House floor. The largest reduction, for instance, was made in the appropriation for the Veterans Administration and there is certain to be heavy pressure for restoring this fund to the original total.

However, it is gratifying to find at least one powerful group in Congress taking some constructive steps toward economizing. The resources of the country and the ability of the taxpayers to pay are, after all, not limitless. The demands of the military are of necessity enormous. A little economy in the right places will hurt less than the extra inflation and extra taxes that are inevitable unless Congress trims some of the fat off non-military federal expenses.

SORDID AND SLIMY

The most disturbing revelation by the Kefauver committee is the fact that the sordid and slimy story of crime it reveals is not just something that just happened to come about. It is a planned program by which major syndicates and minor criminal gangs have banded together for any operations which promise a profit to the promoters.

Of only slightly less concern is the declaration that top level hoodlums are generally able to escape punishment. They have obtained this "immunity" through bribery of public officials, acquisition of political power by contributions to political parties and by creating economic ties with apparently respectable businessmen and lawyers.

Former Mayor O'Dwyer of New York City, who resigned as mayor of the metropolis and was immediately appointed Ambassador to Mexico by President Truman, is charged by the committee with impeding rackets investigations, with intimate friendship with gangsters, and with failing to make use of evidence against such organizations as "Murder, Inc."

It is a thoroughly depressing document that is thus presented to the American people. It is a reminder to them that they have been careless in their choice of public officials.

Someone abroad calls upon the United States to assume moral leadership in the world. How much will that cost?

Thomas Keane, director of Civic Relations of the Boy Scouts of America, was the speaker. In a great address, Mr. Keane showed the importance of continued leadership in scoutign during this time of crisis in our country. Mr. Keane was introduced by scout commissioner, Francis P. Kemmerer.

The appreciation ceremony was in charge of scout executive, Raymond W. Hoxworth. After expressing appreciation to the scouters for "a job well done", he presented the council certificate for men to present to their wives in appreciation for their service in scouting.

Veteran awards were presented by the national council representative, Fred Maag, to Robert MacDonald for 15 years and Conrad Imhof for 20 years service.

Soloman A. Miller of Langhorne Manor, chairman of training, with the assistance of cub training chairman, Lloyd Bucher of Penndel, Clarence Keating of Warrington and a member of the training committee presented scouter training awards to Mrs. Esther Weidemoyer of Sellersville and Clifford Clymer of Doylestown and the scouter's key, the highest training award, to Alfred Weidemoyer of Sellersville, William D. Liebig and Herbert J. Trauger, both of Doylestown.

John Wichelman of Trevose led singing with Mrs. William Liebig accompanist.

Field scout executive, Thurman Gates of Yardley had charge of the presentation section of the program.

Field Scout William J. Gates, Jr., of Quakertown, presented a group of selected scouters in a playlet entitled "What Is a Boy Worth". This was well produced and acted, with Cub Scout Frank Shelly of Warrington and Samuel Leaver of Mechanicsville in the leading roles.

A report to the group shows the excellent progress made in the past 10 years of operation of the council and the need for greater financial support for the work of the council. The per boy yearly cost for scouting in the last five years has increased only from $11.27 to $11.74 per boy, thereby denoting the careful operation of the financial affairs of the council.

This meeting was the largest of its kind ever held of the Bucks County Council Boy Scouts of America, according to a report from the council.

Library at Historical Museum Put To Good Use

DOYLESTOWN, May 9—A total membership of 413 was listed at the annual meeting of Bucks County Historical Society on Saturday in the society headquarters here. At that session, curator and secretary Horace M. Mann informed members that during the past year the library of the society has been used for research to a greater extent than in any previous year.

Additional newspaper racks were installed, he said, and all the back files of current county newspapers have been bound up to date and placed in chronological order.

Mr. Mann said there will be sufficient space for the society's bound newspaper files for the next 15 years. A three-section metal bookcase was purchased during the past year for the placement of manuscript books and ledgers.

He also said Mercer Museum and its collections have also received their share of questions from research, authors and other museums.

"There were more visitors than any year since the museum was opened in 1916," Curator Mann reported.

The curator stated that for some reason the wrought iron and the cast iron specimens have begun to show signs of rusting where the condition had not been observed to any extent in previous years.

Particularly is the splendid collection of stove plates badly in need of attention, the curator reported. The ironwork, he said, is being cleaned and repainted.

The report showed that Ernest Mercer Fernald, of New York, has presented lodge regalia of the earliest settlements. This goes, too, he said, for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and other parts of the country.

Bleyden said that of all the treasures in the Bucks County Historical Society Library, those that awaken the greatest interest in lovers of history, are manuscripts with the autographs of the unforgotten dead, and of eminent persons who played dominant roles in the history of our country.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1951 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, May 9. — President Truman was pretty sore when Senator Charles Tobey, New Hampshire Republican, recorded two White House telephone conversations.

Mr. Truman is quite happy, however, over the fact that a state department stenographer eavesdropped on his Wake Island conference with Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The president is constantly reminding U. S. voters that he is really two people, one the president, the other an ordinary human with normal human frailties. The fact that it was necessary to secrete a shorthand specialist beside a slatted door to listen in on his talk with Gen. MacArthur, raises the question of which Mr. Truman was present for the vital security talks.

Surely, a president of the United States has no need for employing peephole artists in the course of conducting public business. Gen. MacArthur, in his senate committee testimony, revealed his desire to have the conversations recorded. He was ignored in favor of the eavesdropping method, a procedure apparently more in keeping with the current behavior approved by the White House.

Nowhere to date, in presidential wise cracks at Gen. MacArthur or in quasi-official "leaks" of secret documents, has there been any explanation of just why the president journeyed to Wake Island for the conference. It is obvious, of course, why the presidential advisor, W. Averell Harriman, and the state department brass went along. They wanted to get something on the general, even though they lacked the courage to walk in and face MacArthur with a normal request to record openly the discussions held on the island.

To say that this is a new low in the conduct of the office of president of the United States is to jump the gun. The current White House gang isn't through as yet. Somebody thought that the deep freeze scandal reached bottom, until a natural royal pastel mink coat was seen around the White House. I'm sure there will be another climax to this one, too.

Ever since Gen. MacArthur came home to fight, the president has had his political lapdogs scouring the countryside spreading White House propaganda and apologies. The great expert on international diplomacy, Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin, is one. Tobin says that the fight in Korea has stopped the communists from "carrying out their plans to seize the rich prizes in southeast Asia."

The "rich prizes" of Asia, of course, actually were handed over to the communists by the department of state in February of 1945, at the Yalta conference.

W. Averell Harriman trotted out to the west coast at taxpayer expense on April 30th to help "explain" Gen. MacArthur's recall. Keeping in mind the use of a stenographer planted behind a slatted door at Wake Island, read this paragraph from Harriman's speech:

"No president in peacetime initiated so many unprecedented and farsighted measures and actions for our national security as has President Truman."

No one can quarrel with the use of the word unprecedented. There is considerable argument, however, about how farsighted Mr. Truman has been and in what direction. In fact the quarrel can be reduced to two facts.

The first is that Gen. MacArthur was in Asia and knows what it takes to win in Korea. The other is that our strategy for Asia was decided in Washington, between midnight and dawn, by experts on inside straights and royal flushes, who apparently cleared it with Donald Dawson for political patronage and with Secretary of State Dean Acheson for British approval.

The boys at the White House sent their proposal for winning to Gen. MacArthur. The general says it is no policy, simply appeasement and confusion. Maybe it is something else, too. Maybe it is just plain ignorance, spawned by men too long on the public payroll who can't see the truth over the stacks of white crosses for marking American dead in Korea.

Warns Against The Loss of Freedom

Towne Mfg. Co. is planned for the evening of May 16th.

Mr. Rigby announced that an invitation from the Trenton (N. J.) Club had been received to attend a meeting on May 14th at Penn Manor Club. Anyone wishing to attend is to contact the visitation committee by May 10th.

"Some of you already know," Mr. Rigby said, "I have accepted another position with my company which means I will be moving to Worcester, Mass. I have to assume this position as soon as possible. Because of this it will be impossible for me to be here for our next meeting. With feelings of heart-felt regret I find the tendering of my resignation as president of the club inevitable. I should feel remiss if I were to leave without stating, sincerely, that I have appreciated the support and cooperation of members and officers of this club." The meeting was then turned over to Clyde Betts, Jr., 1st vice-president.

Mr. Betts said: "It is with regret that we accept Mr. Rigby's resignation. . . . All members wish you the best of luck in your new position." Mr. Betts then presented a watch as a parting gift to Mr. Rigby. Mr. Rigby, in accepting, said: "I will always value this gift as a memento from each and every one of you, and hope for continued success for Bucks County Industrial Management Club."

When introducing the speaker, Mr. Betts stated: "Many persons have realized that we have unconsciously been surrendering some of our freedoms to our government. Our speaker's topic will be 'Some Light on a Cloudy Subject.' This should enlighten us as to the freedoms we have given up. J. Frank Gaskill is a graduate of Swarthmore College, and served as a captain in the U. S. Army in the First World War."

Gaskill said: "The human race has always suffered under a plague of names. We confuse the reality with a slogan or with a title which we may attach to the reality for the convenience of description, and then we forget the thing itself in remembering the name.

"For nearly 5,000 years, people have been led into folly and have been destroyed because they do not understand that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet. So far, people have never discovered the deception until the thing they thought they were defending has been destroyed.

"Many years before Christ, in Greek city states, there arose, from time to time, men who were called demagogues, which means leader of the people. When these men managed to obtain supreme power, they were called tyrants, which meant rulers without constitutional authority. I say again that we forget the substance in the shadow. The demagogues and tyrants are with us today in the persons of those who are and would be all of these things just as they were with Greece and Rome, but they do not call themselves by the same names. They select names which lull us to sleep so that we may not understand that which is hapepning until it is too late.

"In our own country, there is a group of people who speak and write of themselves as liberals. That word has a pleasant meaning to us because of its association with the work of the great English liberals of the 18th and 19th centuries—men who worked for freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of religion, and for economic freedom, and to that end they constantly strove to restrict and limit the impact of governmental authority upon the daily lives of the people.

"The result of their teachings is to be found in the flowering of civilization and progress in the United States. To find even a brief period in history when such theories were extant, it is necessary to go back from their time to the city of Athens. Only twice, in the history of civilization have these ideas had the force of government, once in Athens and then again among the French- and English-speaking peoples of the 19th and 20th centuries.

"The right choice is liberty. It does not guarantee security, happiness or freedom. It merely guarantees us the right to look for each in our own way. Unfortunately, if we have the right to choose our path and enjoy the reward for choosing rightly, we must also pay the penalty when we choose wrongly, and therein lies the source of most of our troubles and dangers. The four cornerstones of our right of choice, of our liberty, are a free press, free speech, free religion, and a free wealth-producing or economic system. The designing or ignorant minds do not directly oppose the first three. The immediate effect on the individual would be too apparent. They tell us the first three are undeniable by government, but claim that economic freedom can be so denied.

"Herein lies the germ of despotism. If the government controls the wealth who will finance the first three freedoms? Thus free speech, a free press, and free religion will die with the death of a free economic system. John Jones will not long retain his liberty in a country in which John Smith has lost his. Only so long as our economic system is free to finance, protect and uphold a free press, free speech ,and free religion, may we feel safe from despotism. When we tie the tax-gathering power, the police power and the economic system together, we sell our children and our children's children into slavery. Here, then, is a simple, clear and basic answer to our question. Despotism is a disease whose symptoms are the gradual absorption, and operation, or control, by government of the economic or wealth-producing system.

"Italy, Germany and Russia have demonstrated the misery and fear in which people live under despotisms, and England has just shuddered on the brink of full commitment to the philosophy. It should be evident to the English and to us that, while you may talk of distributing wealth, you can only distribute poverty. A number of years after England entered the socialistic path under other names, we also began to embrace that philosophy.

"It is through heavy debt burdens and fiscal stress that this philosophy drives nations down the Socialist path. The philosophy corrodes with promises of easy living, deceives with hope of security and destroys self-reliance. Only the philosophy of individual liberty and responsibility offers a bracing, stimulating certainty of growth because it releases individual energies and creative forces that remain locked in men under compulsion.

"The future of all industry, is inextricably locked up in these philosophies. Economic units cannot grow as they should in an atmosphere of compulsion, confiscation and interference. Here, in America, we live by persuasion, in an atmosphere of compulsion we are frustrated. The result is one of the greatest wonders of the age—industrial America, first in all those things that make for better living."

In closing, Mr. Gaskill said: "I assure you that your first, and most important job is to examine what has happened in this country in the past 15 years; and to relate those happenings to what has happened to others in the past and in the present. You do not have much time before it will be too little and too late."

Pennsylvania Traffic Safety Record Leads U. S. A.

CAR INSPECTION IMPORTANT FACTOR

New Inspection Period Starts May 1st Ends July 31, 1951

There is a direct connection between highway safety and car inspection

Pennsylvania's twice-yearly checking of your car's "danger spots" makes your car four times safer to drive. Safety statistics prove this . . . up to 18% of fatal traffic accidents in America are attributed to mechanical failure of cars—compared to less than 4% in Pennsylvania. Twice each year official inspection checks:

BRAKES—1. Stopping distance. 2. Lining and brake drum. 3. Emergency brake. 4. Line and cylinders. 5. Rods and clevis pins.

TIRES—1. For exposed breaker strip or cord fabric. 2. For cuts and bruises. 3. For ruptured casings.

GLASS—1. Windshield, side windows and rear window glass for cracks or breaks. 2. For discoloration.

STEERING and WHEELS—1. Front end wheel alignment, spindle, bushings and pins. 2. Steering wheel for excessive play. 3. Main shaft. 4. Cross shaft. 5. Steering rod ball sockets. 6. Pitman arm. 7. Shock absorbers.

MIRROR—1. For proper mounting and clear vision.

LIGHTS—1. Headlights for beam candle-power . . . for aiming and proper distribution of light. 2. Tail and stop lamps. 3. All lighting equipment on car must work.

HORN—1. Press horn button. Horn must be audible for at least 200 feet.

EXHAUST MUFFLER AND PIPES—1. Muffler, manifold and pipe for leaks or loose connections.

WINDSHIELD WIPERS—1. Hand or automatic for efficiency. 2. All rubber parts including hose and fittings.

REGISTRATION—1. Serial and registration plate numbers against owner's card. 2. Unobstructed view of license plates.

Get an early start for safe summer driving. Have your car inspected in May. You will not be permitted to drive without this "inspected and approved" sticker after July 31, 1951.

freak show given by troop No. Parkland. Against the back- op of a sheet painted by one of e girls with life-size pictures of eir actors, the audience gazed in onder at "the bearded family", e half man and half woman, the ant, the four-armed lady, the tight ope walker, snake charmer, and t lady.

Another attraction was the fash- n show of yesteryear, by troop o. 17, Langhorne. The "master" f ceremony, escorted models and escribed the fashions from 1890 1915. The bridal costume, and ld fashion nightgown complete ith tiny sleeping bonnet, gath- red interest.

Long lines formed quickly before he tent of Madame Zaza and Ma- lame Esmeralde, fortune telling ypsies from troop 62, Newtown. A ew of the patrons later joined the ines before the fortune telling con- ession of troop 38 of Buckingham.

Troops 62, Newtown, and 42, Warminster, excelled at weight uessing.

The Girl Scouts had their pic- tures "taken" either by roving pho- tographers of senior troop No. 22 from Chalfont, or before the large tripod camera of troop 42 of War- minster, and laughed when photos turned out to be one of the leading characters clipped from comic strips.

The girls enjoyed the puppet how featuring Kukla and Ollie, operated by troop 21, Newportville, as well as performance of the am- ateur show offering tap dancers, Statue of Liberty, and various skits and pantomimes by the members of troop No. 90, Trevose.

The mystery of the sign, "The floating Saucers" displayed by troop No. 93, Langhorne, was solv- ed as the girls stood before large tubs of water and attempted to toss bottle caps into the saucers floating in the water. The aim of the scouts improved as they tossed red balls into the mouth of the colorful gay flown which troop No. 31, Rich- boro, had created from ply-wood, or attempted to get rings onto the numbered nail board of troop No. 39, Quakertown. Other troops with games of skill included troop Nos. 94, Perkasie; 66, Andalusia, and 33, Sellersville. Troop No. 25, Perkasie, offered to tattoo all.

Groups of girls giggled as they watched others as they crept cau- tiously up to a large box marked "The Thing" and peered down into it, only to discover their own image in a mirror. This ingenious idea was carried out by troop No. 18, Doylestown.

As the Scouts closed the midway and assembled for the Brownies' domestic animal parade, they were amazed at the results of their vivid imaginations.

Intermediate and Senior Scouts watched in appreciation as the Brownies paraded and displayed ability to create head masks of paper bags, burlap, or old sheets, decorated with paint, feathers or hemp to form realistic heads of hors- es, birds, pigs, etc. There were sev- eral large horses requiring two Brownies to carry their bodies. Troop No. 52, Langhorne, had used wooly blanket for the body; Doylestown troop, No. 70, made their horse of burlap with hemp for the mane and tail; troop No. 57 had theirs entirely of paper; troop No. 100, Edison, had created a large cow of brown wrapping pa- per. The white bunnies with their long ears and absorbent cotton tails, and pussy cats of troop No. 51, Bristol, made quite a hit. Mrs. R. R. McOrmond, a member of the program committee, was in charge of the parade. At the end of the pa- rade the judges awarded the fol- lowing prizes:

Funniest, 1st prize, Rose Marie Buettner, troop 82, New Hope — chicken; 2nd prize, Nancy Wolse, troop 55, New Hope — cow; 3rd prize — pig; most original, 1st prize, Barbara Ballou, troop 101, Edison — duck; 2nd prize, Mary Cloud and Penny Hanthorne, troop 100, Edison — goat; 3rd prize, Nan- cy VanSant, troop 80, Langhorne— zebra; prettiest, 1st prize, Barbara Gsand, troop 83, Buckingham — chicken; 2nd prize, Eleanor Hay- worth, troop 51, Bristol — rabbit; 3rd prize, Harriet Girton, troop 68, Bristol—duck; most life-like, 1st prize, "Peggy" Snyder, Ruth Con- rad, Karen Whitten, troop 100, Ed- ison — cow; 2nd prize, Janis Thom- as, troop 80, Langhorne — cat; 3rd prize, Margaret Caster, troop 91, Edison — rabbit; most ani- mated, 1st prize, Martha and Mari- n Transue and Betty Dickenson, oop 52, Langhorne — horse; 2nd ize, Galen Caspers, Elizabeth eight, troop 100, Edison — cow; d prize, "Peggy" Welsh, "Patty" ace, troop 100, Edison — sheep.

A formal color ceremony opened presentation of the World iendship Fund by the troops with o senior Scouts, Sue Paxson and rbara Klinger of troop 81, South- pton, serving as color bearers l June Clayton of troop 29, Qua- town, and Carole Fryling, troop Andalusia as color guard. Mrs. ssell H. Crouthamel, Juliette w chairman, told the girls of the tory of the fund and what it is d for. Sixty-five troops made ir contribution to the fund de- ting them in a box bearing the ld Girl Scout insignia topped globe. Mrs. Hillborne Dean, ident of the board, brought her greetings to the group and congrat- ulated them on their cooperation and originality in carry out the fair.

The affair closed with the sing- ing of taps and the lowering of colors.

From Bristol's troop 51 Patricia Kentzler made the presentation and from troop 99, Gloria Beerbower made the presentation. The Bristol group was accompanied by Mrs. John Spicer, Mrs. John Dowd and Mrs. Elwood Bilger, leaders. Others attending from Bristol: Mrs. Joseph Genova and son, Vincent, Mrs. Ar- thur Kentzler and daughter, Mary Ann, Mrs. Edward Hetherington and daughter, Bertha, Mrs. Fred Stewart, Mrs. Harry Hanford, and Mrs. Sol Heinsieus.

Marshall Disputes Truman

the question. Most unfortunately, General Marshall found it impossible to put the principal part of his estimate of the situation into language which he was willing to "de- classify" and permit the American public to hear. Con- sider the following exchange, typical of what went on whenever General Marshall got into difficulties trying to disprove MacArthur's points:

> The Chairman — General, that brings me to the question which I think is plaguing the American people and is causing great indecision in the country, uncertainty and a certain depth of feeling. HOW WILL WE EVER BRING THE KOREAN EPISODE TO A CONCLUSION?
> Marshall — Now what I am going to say now must not all be released because I can't advertise my conclusions as to that to the enemy . . . (deleted)

Boiled down to plain English, and assuming that something when General Marshall said off-the-record did not categorically contradict the on-the-record remarks, Marshall's estimate appeared to be that the American sol- diers could easy defeat the North Koreans, if the North Koreans were not being aided by the Red Chinese, and if the Red Chinese were not being supported by the Russians.

This is not very helpful, since the Red Chinese troops are on the scene in huge numbers, and as to the Russian support, General Marshall testified as follows:

> Marshall — . . . (North Korea's) real supply line as to war materiel, and so forth, is largely coming from the Soviet government.
> The Chairman — You think the bulk of their supplies are coming from the Soviet rather than through the Chinese ports?
> Marshall — Yes, sir; that would not necessarily apply we will say, to medicines of certain kinds, but it certainly applies to weapons, to ammunition, tanks, planes and war materiel of that sort.

The long and short of the Marshall testimony was that he at no time voiced the glib predictions of early and decisive victory from the present strategy which President Truman repeatedly expressed; that the only time he came down to cases in the published testimony he largely agreed with MacArthur that the present situation is a stalemate with the initiative in the hands of Red China and Russia; and that he contented himself with trying to show that MacArthur's proposals wouldn't break this deadlock either.

When President Truman and his Secretary of De- fense, speaking a matter of only a few hours apart, are so widely separated in their views concerning a fundamental military point as to whether our approach to the Korean war is one of victory or stalemate, the question comes up of who really is doing the military thinking at Washington —or who, if anyone, is speaking frankly and honestly to the American people, telling them the true situation?

recreation facilities and for public recreation programs has grown more and more urgent," said the board.

A recreation manual has been prepared for the 1800 communities in the commonwealth which the board says "have not yet accepted a responsibility for guiding their young people and their older citi- zens toward the healthful use of that leisure time which is made possible by modern conditions of life."

Recreation Planning Consultant Kenneth W. Abell believes citizens should alert themselves to the rec- reation needs of their communities and institute action by establish- ing local boards.

"According to the Federal Bu- reau of Investigation," he noted, "five billion dollars are spent each year on education and recreation compared to almost 20 million ex- pended as the cost of crime."

The specialist cited the fact that "every school child has at least 1,840 hours of leisure time each year to spend outside of classes."

"If we are going to make a huge investment for the 1,080 hours he spends in classes each year," he asked, "is it good business to turn him loose the other 1,840 hours with no recreational program?"

Pennsylvania leads the nation in the number of local units — 733 out of 2,560 — which sponsor pub- lic recreation programs.

"Nevertheless," he said, "Penn- sylvania is far behind the nation in expenditures of local tax money for operation and leadership."

Yet, he said, communities must expand their recreational opportun- ities if they wish to compete with other localities in the struggle to build population and expand oppor- tunities.

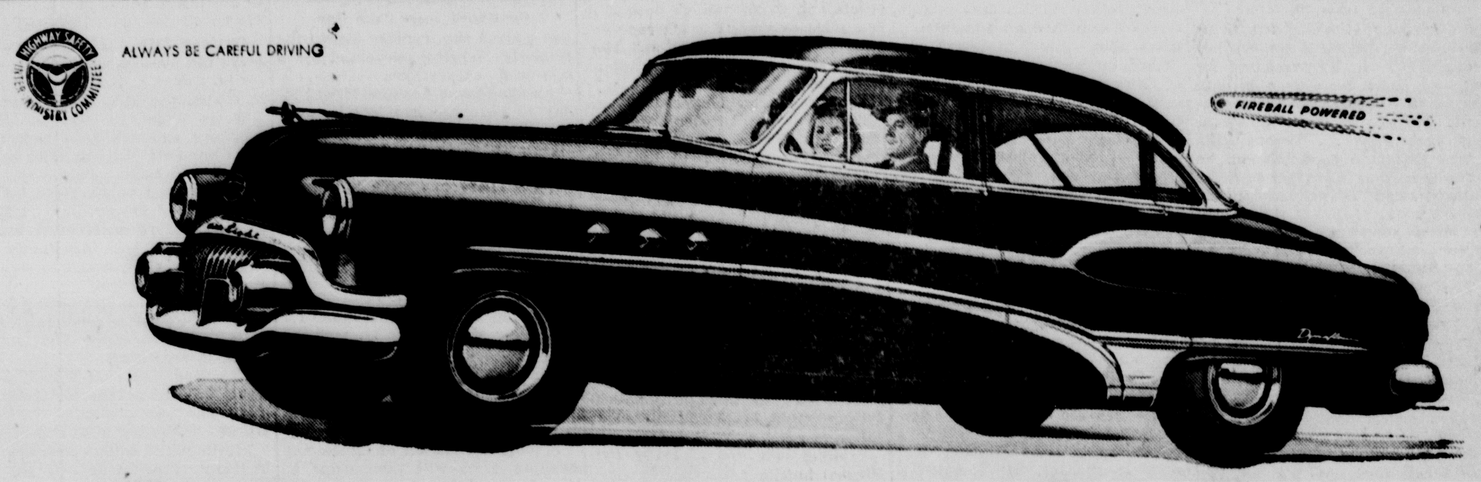

The large number of private and industrially-sponsored recreation programs must be backed up with community facilities, he said.

"Public investment in a new rec- reation program, or in improving the program now operating in a community, will pay off in better physical and mental health, improv- ed morale and broader education and culture," he reported.

"In a great measure," he added, "it will curb juvenile delinquency attract new industry and improve citizenship."

EGG PRESERVING

FORT COLLINS, Colo., — (INS) — C. L. Gish, egg marketing specialist for Colorado A & M College in Fort Collins, advised home makers today that eggs are best preserved by storing at a temperature less than 45 degrees. Gish also pointed out that since the egg's shell is porous, eggs should not be stored near arti- cles which have strong odors such as gasoline, onions, oranges, car- rots and so on.

The difference goes more than Skin-Deep

Nobody wonders what you're driving when you roll by in this one.

In the 1951 line-up, its brand-new front-end styling stands out with a beauty all its own.

You're the proud owner of a Buick— and the whole world knows it.

But you—at the wheel—enjoy a long list of differences that go far deeper than looks.

The ride is different—level and true. You sit the road with special assurance —because Buick's torque-tube drive keeps rear wheels firmly aligned—soft coil springs on all four wheels soak up the bumps and bobbles—honest weight keeps you on a steady keel.

The power is different—eager and sure. Buick's high-compression Fireball engine does wonders with fuel—and no matter what you demand in emer- gency, there's horsepower to spare.

Handling is different—this car seems to steer itself on straightaway or curve —and swings lightly into parking spots inches shorter than you'd think you need.

Capping it all, there's the silken versa- tility of Dynaflow Drive,* that takes all the tenseness out of driving— responds to your slightest wish with a surging swoop of power.

No doubt about it, what you get in a Buick is far more than just a new car —it's a whole new experience in get- ting pleasurably from here to there.

So why not explore this difference? Come, take a Buick over and find out how very much satisfaction smart money can buy.

Informs How Penn Noted Items The Residents Grew

as Christmas gifts or sell them. (2.) For a permanent project buy trees (1,000 can be purchased for $6) and plant them on a hillside for flood control. Have one program in your club on conservation each year. . . Through the school system a good job can be done by sending a teacher to State College, on a $50 scholarship for a three weeks course at the college to learn strip mining, farming, flower culture to bring back to his community."

The main speaker was Dr. Edward E. Wildman, Phila., former head of Nature study in Philadelphia schools. He is the author of "Penns Woods" and "This Week in Penn's Country out of Doors." Dr. Wildman thought William Penn the greatest conservationalist. He informed "After studying at Oxford, England, Penn had written a peace plan for Europe and was an author on government. He became a Quaker and asked the King of England to pay back 16,000 pounds owed his father for a tract of land in the new country. This the king was glad to do if Penn would give it his name with 'Sylvania,' meaning woods. This vast 28 million acres was filled with growing lumber. After centuries, Penn's woods was depleted. Only little spans of trymenial woods was left."

So it was when Dr. Wildman suggested a few years ago instead of school children writing on unimportant subjects for essays they write superintendents of schools and send to four states involved, to find the oldest tree and get seeds from them to plant. Sixty or 80 schools took pictures, (which were printed in newspapers), of these old trees. Rather than allow the pictures to disappear, Dr. Wildman, collected them in his books. A surveyor of the Reading Railroad made a map placing the location of the trees. A noted tree is on route No. 1, two miles ast of Conowingo Dam. It is 700 years old. In 1769 it was marked as the Lafayette tree (it being old in Lafayette's time).

Dr. Wildman told how Penn arrived in this country when 38 years old on Oct. 22, 1682, on his "'Little Welcome." The speaker added: "He came up the Delaware and landed at 'Blue Anchor.' He met the Swedish settlers, then conferred with Lord Baltimore in New York and spent the winter. In the spring he mounted his horse and rode out to note the trees, plants and the things the natives were raising.

"In a paragraph in a letter back to England, he mentioned wheat, barley, oats, watermelons, muskmelons, animal life and honey bees." Dr. Wildman mentioned the importance of the honeybees.

At that moment he noticed a scarlet tanager in the woods and stated that bird clubs have kept records for 30 years and can tell the arrival accurately of all birds. "The black-roll warbler will arrive from the south May 11th on a 2,000 mile trip to Canada and will stay here one week."

Dr. Wildman recalled that William Penn mentioned the wild turkey at Pennsbury, weighing 40 or 50 pounds; the wild animals; the whale, the sturgeon, the lobster and the shad all in the Delaware at that time. "Penn rode four miles to Fallsington Meeting and tied his horse to a ring in the white oak tree. Recently the old tree fell and split open, and three of these hitching rings were found embedded in the tree."

An old deed of Penn was displayed with the indenture showing the wavy line at the top of the parchment, "which is explanatory of the word."

A picnic lunch was enjoyed and a tour of the trails was made.

NEWPORTVILLE

The Rev. John L. Foreman, a native of England, was the visiting minister at Newportville Community Church—Presbyterian on Sunday. He read the scripture and led in prayer, after which the pastor, the Rev. Lester Paul, gave the sermon. The Rev. Mr. Foreman is a retired Presbyterian minister, formerly of Chester. He recalled a snowy day when he preached in Bristol Presbyterian Church. When he reached his home-town depot to leave for Bristol he was informed, due to the heavy snows, there would be no "local" train running. When it was explained he had to get to Bristol to preach he learned the station agent was a Bristol resident. The latter flagged a New York express, making it possible for the clergyman to reach his destination and fulfill his engagement.

14-Year-Old Bicyclist Hurt; Taken to Hospital

SOUTHAMPTON, May 9 — A bicycle and motor vehicle figured in an accident yesterday afternoon at 4.50 at Bridgetown Pike and Herman street, Lower Southampton township.

At the same time a vehicle operated by Stacey Widdecombe, Phoenixville, was travelling east on the Bridgetown Pike. Neither individual noticed the other due to high banks along Herman street.

The agreement also carries an option on a railroad underpass in Perkasie, allowing the borough to use the underpass as a possible roadway, offering a solution to a traffic problem.

Aviation Films To Be Open To The Public

A lengthy showing of interesting aviation films will take place at the Aeromodeleers' meeting this evening. The meeting will begin at 7.30 and will be held in the basement of 1604 Farargut avenue. The public is invited to see these films, some of which are most recent ones, released by the U. S. Air Force, Navy and CAA. As an extra feature, a new film, said to be previously shown only to the military personnel, entitled "Communism," will be shown.

Several of the Aeromodeleers attended the model aircraft record trials on Sunday at Millville, N. J. No records were set, but some excellent flights were made. Best flights were those of James VanSant, Jr., who attained a speed of 138 mph in the Class D speed event, and by David Baker, who attained a speed of 107 mph in the Class B speed event.

On Sunday, the Aeromodeleers will compete at the first Bucks County Federation of Model Clubs contest at Hatboro. Events will be for gliders, standard speed, stunt and beauty models. On May 27th, a major competition for team racing models will be held at Quakertown where Bristol fliers will compete. Several meets of major importance are scheduled through June, July, August and September.

Find Man's Lifeless Body in A Junk Yard

A man of 67 years, who had lived in Bristol for many years, was found dead on the ground at an automobile junk yard in Bristol township late last night.

The deceased, Richard Johnson, is believed to have suffered a heart attack.

Johnson, who had for some time been sleeping each night in Bristol police station, asked permission a week ago of Joseph Gross to sleep in one of the junked automobiles each night, in return for keeping watch at the automobile "graveyard," which is located at Second avenue and Magnolia road.

Gross had talked with Johnson at seven o'clock last evening; and when Gross went to the yard at 11 to seek Johnson he found the elderly man's lifeless body on the ground in back of one of the automobiles.

Chief of Bristol Township Police Joseph Seader was notified, and Bucks County Coroner J. Alfred Rigby was called. The body was removed to the funeral home of John C. Black. It is believed that Johnson had been dead nearly four hours.

Today's Quiet Moment

"Men ought always to pray and not to faint." Have you received the gift of God's love, the Lord Jesus Christ? If you have, then you are redeemed, bought by the Lord Jesus and His sacrificial death on the cross of Calvary. Every Christian ought to have a definite and positive prayer life. We may and can talk directly with God. We can be most specific as we pray and ask very definitely that the will of God shall be operative in our lives or in the lives of others. We should pray for ourselves that we might be all that God would have us to be. We should pray for the other Christians in the world. That God will be with them daily and use their lives as channels of blessings. We should pray for the unsaved individuals in the world that God will use some means, his Holy Word, the preaching of some minister or missionary, or even the godly living of some believer in Christ to win them to a saving knowledge of Christ. We must pray for the service men. How they do need our prayers that God will keep them from evil and from the Evil One. We should pray also for the nations of the world. For surely the only answer to the needs of humanity is to be known through prayer. "Men ought always to pray." Let us truly believe that nothing lies beyond the power of prayer except that which is outside the will of God.

MORRISVILLE IS VICTOR OVER BENSALEM, 2-1

MORRISVILLE, May 9—A dropped pop-up enabled Morrisville High to nose out Bensalem Township High, 2-1, in a Lower Bucks County League game here yesterday. The defeat knocked the Owls out of first place in the circuit.

After six scoreless inning, Bensalem broke the ice by crossing the plate in the top half of the seventh. Joe Mikelaitis tripled to deep left. Walt Smith hit to Homko whose throw to the plate was too late to get Mikelaitis.

But the Bulldogs came back to win the tilt in their part of the frame. With no one gone, Ed Trout singled to left. Brunner flied out and Cowell fanned for two out. Jenks had two strikes on Hensor but he lined out a three-bagger to left to score Trout. At this stage of the game, Coach Marion VanHorn took out Jenks to let Whitfield pitch to Don Hable. Hable popped up to Bowman in fair territory but the Owls' third-sacker was too anxious and dropped the fly, scoring Hensor with the winning tally.

Dallas "Lefty" Jenks whiffed ten Morrisville batters and walked two. He struck out the side in the fifth.

DON WILLIAMS WINS FOR PENNSBURY

RICHBORO, May 9—Don Williams, lanky right-hander, twirled Pennsbury High into first place in the Lower Bucks County circuit by beating Council Rock High, 5-4, in a hotly-fought game here yesterday.

Williams struck out eight and walked two. He was very effective in the pinches, blanking Council Rock after the second inning. Russ Morris went the route for the losing team.

Council Rock had a 4-3 lead until the Falcon knotted the count in the fourth on Jim Baziow's single and another hit by Granville Mayo. The winning marker was made in the sixth when Chris Bennett tripled to left and crossed on Baziow's long fly to center.

Pennsbury is now one-half game ahead of Bensalem Township in the league standing.
